

DON'T READ THIS.

An OVERCOAT Given Away

With Every
75th Cash Sale.

COMMENCING Dec. 25th,
FOR 30 DAYS,

An Overcoat,
Will be GIVEN AWAY at the old reliable house of

E. M. Westfall,

With every 75th Cash Sale. The lucky customer will be allowed to select from the ENTIRE STOCK ranging from $7 to $26.

Our Stock is Complete.

Boots and Shoes, Hats and Caps, Trunks and Valises, Cotton and Woolen Hosiery, Flannel Shirts, White and Fancy Shirts, Silk Handkerchiefs, Gloves and Mittens, Collars and Cuffs, Cashmere Mufflers, and a full line of Ready Made Clothing. MERCHANT TAILORING a SPECIALTY. Measures taken and suits made to order on short notice. Don't forget the house, No. 38, Front Street, Towne & McFadden Block.

GRAND Closing Out Sale!

OF
Dry Goods
And MILLINERY,

AT
Mrs. H. THEVIOT'S,
No. 16 Front Street East.

Commencing Jan. 4.

I will sell all goods without any exception at

Actual Eastern

Cost

Calicos,
Cottons, Bleached and
Unbleached,
Ginghams,

Flannels,
Dress Goods,

Hoods and Hosiery,
Cloaks and Shawls,
Blankets, Comforters,

Table Linens,
SILK VELVETS,
SILK PLUSHES,
VELVETEENS,
SATINS,

And other goods too numerous to mention.

THE

Ladies of Brainerd and Vicinity

Will do well to look over my stock and Note Prices, and they will be convinced that Dry Goods and Millinery have never before been offered at such low figures in Brainerd. Respectfully,

MRS. H. THEVIOT.

Local News

The lumbermen are happy.

J. H. Koop was a St. Paul visitor Tuesday.

Editor Halstead will go to Washington shortly.

The balance of our cloaks at cost.

L. J. CALE.

Dr. Camp was a Fargo visitor on Monday.

Abe Dettelbach has gone to Austin on a business trip.

Ladies would do well to note our closing sale of cloaks at cost.

L. J. CALE.

Dan Clark has been confined to his house the greater part of this week with quincy.

Nine carpets from 25 cents per yard up at L. J. CALE's.

Cal. Wagner's minstrels at the opera house on Monday night. Don't fail to see them.

H. M. Barron expects to go to New York city on a two weeks visit in about ten days.

In December there were eight births and one death during 1885, according to Clerk Morford's report.

John Bannan is engaged in taking the number of births and deaths for 1885 in this city.

C. H. Conklin and family have returned from Hastings where they spent the holidays among their old friends.

Rev. W. H. Medlar will preach at the First Congregational church next Sunday morning and evening.

PURE oil liquors by measure or bottle at the Ky. Liquor Co. Sixth street, next door to post office.

A new girl baby is reported at the residence of Jeff Sanders, on Sixth street, since Wednesday.

The "beautiful" came just in time for the city to enforce its sidewalk cleaning ordinance.

A FEW CHILDREN'S CLOAKS LEFT AT COHEN BROS. YOU CAN BUY THEM AT COST.

Chas. Glass has bought out the grocery and flour and feed business of E. W. Sleeper, at the corner of sixth and Laurel streets.

The office of A. P. Riggs, successor to O. H. Hubbard in real estate and collections, is room 12, Sleeper block, next door to Journal office.

AT COHEN BROS. YOU CAN GET ALL-WOOL CASHMERE UNDERWEAR FOR LADIES AT 75c. FORMER PRICE $1.00.

Sunday morning the subject at the Methodist church will be "The spirit that leads to glory." In the evening "The Power of Faith."

About a foot of snow has fallen since Wednesday night, and as the roads were smooth as glass and as hard as dirt before it came, the sleighing is fine.

AT COHEN BROS. YOU CAN GET AN ALL-WOOL CASHMERE UNDERWEAR FOR LADIES AT $1.25. FORMER PRICE $1.50.

E. O. Webb has purchased the post-office news stand and business, of Cable & Co., and has moved it into his store on Front street. Mr. Webb now has control of that line of business in this city.

The public schools were re-opened on Monday after the usual holiday vacation. The attendance is good and the scholars showed renewed vigor after their week's rest.

Cal. Wagner's minstrels will occupy the opera house on Monday evening next, Jan. 11th. These minstrels are pronounced by press and public to be the greatest on earth.

Every body knows "Happy Cal. Wagner," and they also know that his troupe of minstrels is the finest in the land. They will hold forth at the opera house next Monday night.

Thirteen pigs once graced the sty adjacent the grist mill. The number is now five, one having died and the other seven having been stolen at different times by some lover of pork.

A party of Brainerd young people were entertained by R. K. Whiteley and family, on Saturday evening last, at his residence three and one-half miles north-east of the city. They report having had a very enjoyable time.

The state firemen's tournament will be held at Shakopee in the spring, and at a recent meeting of the department of this city A. P. Leopold and Wm. Spencer were elected to represent our city at the convention.

There is a movement on foot to establish a market place in this city for the sale of all food, hay, etc., that is brought into the city by the farmers. The scheme is a good one and we would like to see it carried out.

Judge and Mrs. J. B. Douglas started on Tuesday night for Windsor Locks, Conn., their old home, where they will visit for several days. During Mr. Douglas absence Judge Fleming presides with dignity over the municipal court.

H. O. Shaner and bride arrived in Brainerd on Thursday night of last week from Pennsylvania. The newly married couple went immediately to housekeeping in the house formerly occupied by Mr. Vandervelde on Ninth street.

The new officers of White Cross Lodge K. P. were installed on Tuesday evening by Grand District Deputy, Wm. Percy. After the installation exercises were over the members were invited to a banquet at the City Restaurant which was tendered them by the newly installed officers.

K. S. Paine & Co., is the new style of the city meat market firm. K. S. Paine having formed a partnership with his brother, N. M. Paine, who has for the past four years resided in Illinois. With the new addition to the firm and new apparatus that has recently been added they cannot but do an immense business.

The ladies of the Methodist church will give an oyster supper at the new church on Thursday evening of next week, Jan. 14th. The evening will be enlivened by a choice musical programme, the proceeds to be applied on the expense of furnishing the new church. Let there be a good attendance.

We have several subscribers on our list who have agreed to bring word to this office to liquidate their indebtedness on the paper. Wind burns very well in warm weather, but when the thermometer gets down to 25 degrees below Fargo it requires the real stuff to take the chill off. In other words—will those parties who promised us word on subscription please bring it in NOW.

A SUCCESS IN EVERY PARTICULAR.

New Year's Night Enlivened by a Grand Concert and Ball at the Roller Rink.

The Library Benefit.

It is with much satisfaction that we chronicle the fact of the immense success of the concert, conversation and ball given on New Year's Night by the members of the N. P. Library Association of this city. Long before the time appointed for the entertainment to take place the mammoth rink was filled until it seemed there was hardly room for another person, but still they came; the gallery, the song room and the standing room was all occupied. The first thing that met the gaze of the spectator as he entered the room were the beautiful decorations of evergreens, which hung in festoons and were twined into different shapes. Over the entrance of the rink on the inside was an arch made entirely of evergreens, and on which was a motto "Welcome All," the "all" being in the shape of a shoe-maker's awl. Over the stage was a banner on which were inscribed the words "Happy New Year," underneath which was a large open book and on the right hand page the words "N. P. Library Association," the left hand page containing the words "Knowledge is Power." Over the band stand was a large old clock bearing the name of the association and which was finely decorated and trimmed with evergreens; underneath the stand was spread the national colors. The hall was lighted with the usual lamps with the addition of four headlamps, while the light for the stage was given out by four beautiful hanging lamps, which were furnished by Walter Davis for the occasion.

When everything was in readiness for the literary exercises, Capt. Spaulding arose from his seat on the stage as chairman, and greeted the audience with a very neat and appropriate speech in behalf of the association, thanking the audience for their attendance and liberal patronage which had been of material aid in getting the association under headway. Mr. Spaulding filled the chair with much credit to himself and to the association, and the committee are to be congratulated upon having made so excellent a selection. After concluding his remarks Mr. Spaulding announced that the exercises would begin with an overture by the City Band entitled "Poet and Peasant," which was delightfully rendered. Next was a chorus by the Brainerd Musical Society that was quite heartily encored. Then came a rendition of the famous quarrel scene, act iv scene 3, Julius Caesar, between Brutus and Cassius, by A. and George Leopold, A. impersonating Brutus while George did Cassius. This was one of the richest treats of the evening, for no where off the stage and rarely among professionals can be found a better interpretation of these characters than was here displayed by the brothers. Their make up was faultless, and must have required no little trouble and expense. They did not rant and rave as is so commonly done by amateurs, but rendered their parts with expression and in a manner that would have done credit to professionals. Not a few in the audience were surprised find such dramatic talent in our midst, and they were encored with a gusto which indicated that their efforts were appreciated. Next came a recitation by Chas. Johnson, whose "Extraordinary Pleading" brought down the house, after which the audience was favored by a song, "The Village Blacksmith," by John W. Wood. The gleeful club, composed of Messrs. Camp, Congdon, Hitchcock and Alderman, sang "Take me back to old Virginia" in such a creditable manner that at its conclusion they were recalled and again favored the audience. The club never failed to arouse the enthusiasm of their hearers. The next on the programme was the guitar solo by Messrs. Shaw and Daggett, and the gentlemen displayed no little skill in the manipulation of the strings of this favorite instrument; they were recalled a second time. The piano solo was executed in a manner that indicated the fine musical culture of this lady. A character song by Miss Katie Meekins was sung in such a manner as to completely captivate her hearers, and she was recalled and sang "Pretty Pond Lilies," which was also well rendered, although we think the music was rather difficult for one so young. Master W. N. Wood then appeared before the audience in a character song "Papa's Little Boy," which was so well called out that the audience was convulsed with laughter, and especially was that part of the audience pleased who had experienced the pleasure of seeing Master Wood in a character song called again to the stage. Dr. Hawley was then called upon for a few remarks, and addressed the audience as follows:

ADDRESS.

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen: I have been requested to make a few remarks at this point in the program for the evening. The motto of the association placed before you is "Knowledge is Power," knowledge is indeed power—power for good or evil according to the will of the person using it.

It is with much pleasure that I offer my hearty congratulations to the officers and members of the N. P. R. resident in Brainerd on their certain success in founding an N. P. Association Library for their own use and the success of the association in their already established reading rooms.

A library, amply supplied and wisely arranged will be a valuable addition to your educational machinery. It will furnish mental nutriment to both officers and men, and be a stimulus to inquiry and research.

In the wisdom of ages—in the treasures of mechanical science, there is vast educational power. The thought of what others have done, and the results they have achieved, affords inspiration to those who are now similarly engaged; while to be brought into direct contact with the noblest minds of earth, and with all that is pure and lofty, and brilliant, and profound, in literature, in philosophy, in mechanical science, has a refining and elevating influence, which goes far in the formation of character, and in the completion of education.

For the purpose of reference, a well assorted library is of the highest utility, while supplying information, and thus rendering thought and stimulation, it is invaluable. It should be a library representing all ages, all countries, all branches of knowledge, an instructor. Many editorialists deal disingenuously with morals and religion in their practical applications. They discuss all topics and duties, such as the mutual duties of husbands and wives, of laborers and employers, the principles of conduct for young men and young women, and all the high and broad interest of humanity. Many editorialists in the better and higher class, are short and pitifully far-sighted, and find favor among communities who take life seriously and earnestly. Upon the editors of to-day the telegraph is pouring the news of the whole world, his swift pen is touching every interest of politics, trade, society, conduct, faith and every phase of the great world's teeming activity.

In setting about, fitting up and establishing a beautiful and appropriate room in one of their new buildings for the education of a school and library, school room and lecture room for specialties, for the use of these foremen and workmen, engineers and brakemen, the officers of the N. P. R. R. have exhibited great wisdom and benevolence, and its influence on the morality and efficiency of its various departments, must be very great and is every way praiseworthy.

The education of an American does not end with the school. The school only begins what is to continue all through life, and the news room and library are essential—nay, necessary helps and aids.

From my experience as a teacher in my earlier days, I have a just appreciation of the value of a good library, and I have a taste for reading and collecting stores of thought, and supply the deficiencies of early education; without such helps they will continue with a row, sterile minds, and with no general literary culture.

The remedy for this is to be found in the library and reading room. There they will find some little change and refreshment of the mind, and a good reading which will keep them from idle and gross indulgences, and send them back to their mechanical work with new zest and spirit, better satisfied with themselves, and more eager for improvement in every way. I know of no way in which the intelligent and liberal minded officers of the N. P. R. R. can do so much to elevate the character of this great transportation corporation, and at the same time to elevate the character of its employees, as by firmly establishing its reading room and library, and I feel sure they are grateful for the encouragement given by the presence of so many of our citizens here to-night, and for the promptness of the association.

After the reverend gentlemen concluded his remarks which were very attentively listened to, the band played a grand selection entitled "Maratona" which was the first it had been listened to by a Brainerd audience. Then followed a chorus by the Brainerd Musical society, after which came the initiation of the famous Westminster Abbey Chimes by Geo. Wood, which was certainly very interesting. The instrument used by Mr. Wood to produce the tones was called a bellina, and is of his own manufacture; the instrument has ten wires, and on it he can execute anything from a horripole to the "Bluebells of Scotland." Messrs. Shaw and Daggett again favored the audience followed by Prof. Dresskell in a cornet solo, which did not fail to draw enthusiastic applause from the hearers. The base solo by S. F. Alderman "Curfew Shall Not Ring To-night," was one of the finest selections of the evening, as a singer Mr. Alderman has few equals in this section. The following song by Mrs. Dr. Courtney was also well received; this lady has a clear soprano voice remarkable for its sweetness and strength. The programme was concluded by a song from the gleu club "The Bugle Horn," which well deserved the applause it received.

Immediately after the concert was over it was announced from the stage that the matter of deciding who was the most popular lady, would be the next proceeding. No names were allowed to be brought forward unless accompanied by fifty votes to start with, showing that they were popular to the amount of $5. The candidates were Mrs. Geo. Forsyth and Mrs. H. J. Small. The voting was spirited and lively, and at the conclusion the vote stood, for the latter lady, 502 votes, and for the former 293, and the handsome pyramidal cake made and given to the association by Mrs. J. McNaughton, was presented to Mrs. H. J. Small.

Immediately after this part of the programme was finished, the floor was cleared for dancing and over one hundred couples joined in the grand march. The lovers of the art tripped the light fantastic toe until late in the night, and every participant vowed on going home that the evening had been one of the most enjoyable that had ever been spent in Brainerd.

NOTES.

David Smith as "caller" for the dance gave much satisfaction.

There was somewhere in the neighborhood of 1200 people in the rink.

The proceeds from the sale of the "cake" paid all expenses within a few dollars.

Dresskell's orchestra was up to the times, as it always is, and furnished the finest music that Minnesota affords.

Three car loads of evergreens were brought to the rink for decoration purposes. On account of so much other work the committee did not have time to get it all into the rink.

It was generally noticed and remarked that there was never a more orderly crowd of people together in Brainerd than on this occasion. Everything passed off like clock work.

The several committees can congratulate themselves on the universal satisfaction expressed by all present, for it was to them mainly that the success of the entertainment depended on.

Each being a very pleasant occasion, it was also profitable one to the association, the receipts being about $550 and the amount needed $455, which will be used to purchase books for the library rooms.

The supper gotten up at the English Kitchen restaurant was one of the most elaborate ever set out to a hungry throng of merry dancers in this city. The decorations at the restaurant were very unique, and everything was in keeping with the occasion.

The only thing that did not pass off as the committee would have wished was the distribution of dance programmes. It was their intention to give them out to the dancers as they formed on for the grand march, but through some misunderstanding many of the spectators got programmes, which left them short, and the dancers began to form on and consequently many had to do without. It was not expected that there would be such a turnout, and in this respect the committee could not remedy the annoying mistake.

A CARD OF THANKS.

On behalf of the committee on the late concert, conversation and ball given by the Northern Pacific Library Association, we desire to express our sincere thanks for the many courtesies received at the hands of the public generally, and to those who participated in the concert, the success of which was largely due to the efficient management of which they acquitted themselves.

B. HASKELL, Sec'y.

JAMES MCNAUGHTON, Chairman.

COHEN BROS. WILL TAKE STOCK THE 1st OF FEBRUARY, AND IN ORDER TO REDUCE SOME WILL SELL ANY ARTICLE IN THEIR STORE AT EXACTLY WHAT IT COST, FROM A SILK DRESS TO A YARD OF CALICO. NOW IS YOUR TIME TO CATCH ON TO THE MANY BARGAINS THEY WILL OFFER THIS MONTH.

The City Council.

On Monday evening the city council met in regular session, the first business of importance being the budget of bills which were allowed as follows:

Monthly pay roll..... $230 50

F. S. Blair..... 2 35

Brainerd Water Co..... 155 00

R. A. Benson..... 2 20

A. E. Snyder..... 3 00

Conklin, Clark & Co..... 23 50

N. W. Tribune..... 17 07

The report of the committee to obtain a lease of the grounds for the new city prison reported that they had conferred with the proper railroad officials and found that they could get the grounds for that purpose, for as long as was necessary. A side walk was ordered to be built before May 15, 1886, commencing at the west corner of block 155, corner of Pine streets and Broadway south, along the east line of Broadway to the south-west corner of block 191.

An ordinance was passed relative to keeping the sidewalks cleared of snow, the limit being from Fourth street to Broadway east and west, and from Bluff Avenue to Oak streets north and south.

Gents underware in any color, size or price, at L. J. CALE's.

Ask to see those $5.00 cloaks at L. J. CALE's.

A FEW CHILDREN'S CLOAKS LEFT AT COHEN BROS. YOU CAN BUY THEM AT COST.

Obituary.

Died—In Sacramento, Cal., Dec. 14th, 1885, of dropsy of the heart, Wm. G. Allen, Sr. aged 59 years.

Mr. Allen was born in Monmouth, county Derry, Ireland, and came to this country some years ago. He was for two years foreman in the boiler department of the Northern Pacific shops in this city. He left Brainerd last spring for California.

Ladies' Newports, the latest styles, only $5.00, at L. J. CALE's.

AT COHEN BROS. YOU CAN BUY A CLOAK AT COST.

Any thing you can ask for in the rubber line at L. J. CALE's.

Genuine Seal Caps Almost Given Away.

Day & Meagher have determined to close out the balance of their seal caps at just half price. Note the following: Four genuine Seal caps at $1.50, former price $3.00.

Two genuine Seal caps at $7.50, former price $15.00.

Ten genuine Seal caps at $7.75, former price $15.00.

Eight genuine Seal caps at $8.50, former price $17.00.

Also, a large line of ladies fur caps at the same reduction. Call and secure a bargain, at Day & Meagher's.

Blatz's Export Wiener beer by case or bottle at the Ky. Liquor Co.

Gray blankets for $1.50 per pair, at L. J. CALE's.

BLANKETS, BLANKETS, IN WHITE, RED OR GREY, AT COST, AT COHEN BROS.

THE FINEST LINE OF HAMBURG EMBROIDERIES EVER OFFERED IN THE CITY CAN BE SEEN AT COHEN BROS., FROM A YARD TO $2.50.

Crow Wing Items.

The births and deaths as returned by Town Clerk Holmes for the past year is as follows: Deaths 2; births 5.

A very pleasant New Year Party was held at the residence of M. D. Everest on Thursday evening of last week. The party was a surprise, and lunch was served from overflowing baskets brought by the participants.

John A. Camfield and Mrs. Annie Williams, of Brainerd, were married by Justice Dan Holmes at his residence in Crow Wing on New Year's Night.

Imported and Key West Cigars at wholesale and retail at the Ky. Liquor Co.

AT COHEN BROS. YOU CAN GET WHITE MERINO UNDERWEAR FOR LADIES AT 37c. FORMER PRICE 50c.

Religious meetings are being held nightly in the East Brainerd Congregational church, and will probably be continued during the following week, after which the good work will be continued in the first Congregational Church in this city. We understand that the attendance is very good.

AT COHEN BROS. YOU CAN GET WHITE MERINO UNDERWEAR FOR LADIES AT 50c. FORMER PRICE 75c.

Cloaks, cloaks, cloaks, at cost price. Only a few more left.

L. J. CALE.

A. V. Snyder sells boots and shoes the cheapest.

Rubbers of all kinds cheap at A. V. Snyder's.

We understand that E. H. Houx has resigned his position with the Northern Pacific road at this place, and will leave for Sedalia, Mo., in a short time. He will engage in business. His successor has been appointed in the person of E. O. Parks.

WOOLEN GOODS, KNIT GOODS, HOSIERY, UNDERWEAR AND FLANNELS AT COST, FOR THIS MONTH, AT COHEN BROS.

AT COHEN BROS. YOU CAN GET CHILDREN'S UNDERWEAR IN RED AND WHITE AT WHAT THEY COST.

CLOAKS, CLOAKS, TO BE SOLD AT EXACTLY WHAT THEY COST, AT COHEN BROS.

District Deputy A. W. Frater installed the officers of Evergreen Lodge, I. O. O. F. on Monday night, and on Wednesday evening the officers of Wilder Lodge I. O. O. F. were installed district deputy R. H. Paine.

It is rumored that the county commissioners held their annual meeting on Monday and Tuesday last, and were about to wind up the session when they were informed that they were a day ahead of time, and which, on investigation, was found to be correct, and the work had to be gone over with the following day. The joke is too good to be suppressed.

HOODS, LEGGINGS, MITTENS, AT COST, AT COHEN BROS.

The police raided the houses of ill-fame on Tuesday night, and succeeded in capturing five male bums, who were brought up before His Honor, Judge Fleming, on Wednesday morning. One man paid his fine, another proffered himself to be the knight of the culinary department of one of the houses, and the other three agreed to leave the city before six o'clock. The authorities are here at work trying to rid the city of the large number of thieves and bums, and it is to be hoped their efforts will not be in vain.

CLOAKS, CLOAKS, TO BE SOLD AT EXACTLY WHAT THEY COST, AT COHEN BROS.

AT COHEN BROS. YOU CAN BUY ANYTHING IN THE LINE OF DRESS GOODS AT COST.

Great--SLAUGHTER--Great

BOYS' OVERCOATS REDUCED TO HALF PRICE AT Day & Meagher's.

SIX COATS at $1.50, FORMER PRICE $3.00
FIVE " 1.63, " 3.25
SIX " 1.75, " 3.50
EIGHT " 3.00, " 6.00
EIGHT " 3.25, " 6.50
FOUR " 3.75, " 7.50
SEVEN " 4.00, " 8.00
EIGHT " 4.75, " 9.50
EIGHT " 5.25, " 10.50

At the above prices the goods will last but a short time. Call early while we have the assortment.

DAY & MEAGHER, Wholesale and Retail

AT COHEN BROS. YOU CAN BUY A CLOAK AT COST.

The Douglas is the best wearing shoe for Ladies and Gentlemen. Call and see them at Snyder's.

Those seal vamp shoes are grand. Don't crack or peel. Snyder sole agent.

Ladies extra high cut fine shoes at SNYDER'S.

Bargains in Shoes of all kinds at A. V. SNYDER'S.

The finest line of shoes in the city can be seen at Snyder's.

Chas. Wilkins and wife will leave here on Monday next for a visit with relatives at Willmar. From there they will go to Minneapolis, where Mr. Wilkins accepts a situation in the retail department of Sleeper & Nowell's grocery house. Mr. Wilkins was once an employee of this office, but of late has been employed in E. W. Sleeper's store here, and his employers in Minneapolis will find him thoroughly reliable and trustworthy.

John A. Jackson and wife, recently of this city, but now of Minneapolis, visited two or three days here during the holidays. They have many friends here, and have hopes of returning to Brainerd again to reside here permanently.

ROYAL

BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low cost weight alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in cans. Royal Baking Powder Co. 105 Wall Street, N. Y.

For Sale by S. J. W. Koop.

STEDMAN'S SOOTHING POWDERS.

Prepared only by Dr. J. STEDMAN, London Eng., and Atlanta Ga., U. S.

Well-known universally used all over the world. Tested for upwards of fifty years. An Agency has been established at Atlanta, and powders will be forwarded, mail free on receipt of amount stated. Single packet, 25cts; five times the quantity for $1.00.

Address Dr. J. STEDMAN, Atlanta, Ga.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Whereas, default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Marietta A. Whiteley and Robert K. Whiteley, her husband, mortgagee to Martin C. Blase, Administrator of estate of A. F. Carr, (now Martin C. Grimshaw, mortgagee, which said mortgage, bears date the 15th day of September, A. D. 1885, on which said mortgagee duly acknowledged the same, and

DON'T READ THIS.
An OVERCOAT Given Away
With Every
75th Cash Sale.
COMMENCING Dec. 25th,
FOR 30 DAYS,
An Overcoat,
Will be GIVEN AWAY at the old reliable house of
E. M. Westfall,
With every 75th Cash Sale. The lucky customer will be allowed to select from the ENTIRE STOCK ranging from $7 to $26.
Our Stock is Complete.
Boots and Shoes, Hats and Caps, Trunks and Valises, Cotton and Woolen Hosiery, Flannel Shirts, White and Fancy Shirts, Silk Handkerchiefs, Gloves and Mittens, Collars and Cuffs, Cashmere Mufflers, and a full line of Ready Made Clothing. MERCHANT TAILORING a SPECIALTY. Measures taken and suits made to order on short notice. Don't forget the house, No. 35, Front Street, Towne & McFadden Block.

GRAND
Closing Out Sale!
OF
Dry Goods
And MILLINERY,
AT
Mrs. H. THEVIOT'S,
No. 16 Front Street East.
Commencing Jan. 4.
I will sell all goods without any exception at

Actual Eastern
COST

Calicos,
Cottons, Bleached and
Unbleached,
Ginghams,
Flannels,
Dress Goods,
Hoods and Hosiery,
Cloaks and Shawls,
Blankets, Comforters,
Table Linens,
SILK VELVETS,
SILK PLUSHES,
VELVETEENS,
SATINS,

And other goods too numerous to mention.

THE
Ladies of Brainerd and Vicinity
Will do well to look over my stock and Note Prices, and they will be convinced that Dry Goods and Millinery have never before been offered at such low figures in Brainerd. Respectfully,
MRS. H. THEVIOT.

Local News

The lumbermen are happy.

J. H. Koop was a St. Paul visitor Tuesday.

Editor Halstead will go to Washington shortly.

The balance of our cloaks at cost. L. J. CALE.

Dr. Camp was a Fargo visitor on Monday.

Abe Dettelbach has gone to Austin on a business trip.

Ladies would do well to note our closing sale of cloaks at cost. L. J. CALE.

Dan Clark has been confined to his house the greater part of this week with quinsy.

Nice carpets from 25 cents per yard up at L. J. CALE's.

Cal. Wagner's minstrels at the opera house on Monday night. Don't fail to see them.

H. M. Barron expects to go to New York city on a two weeks visit about ten days.

In Deerwood there were eight births and one death during 1885, according to Clerk Morford's report.

John Bannan is engaged in taking the number of births and deaths for 1885 in this city.

C. H. Conklin and family have returned from Hastings where they spent the holidays among their old friends.

Rev. W. H. Medlar will preach at the First Congregational church next Sunday morning and evening.

PURE old liquors by measure or bottle at the Ky Liqueur Co. Sixth street, next door to post office.

A new girl baby is reported at the residence of J. Sanders, on Sixth street, since Wednesday.

The "beautiful" case just in time for the city to enforce its sidewalk cleaning ordinance.

A FEW CHILDREN'S CLOAKS LEFT AT COHEN BROS. YOU CAN BUY THEM AT COST.

Chas. Glass has bought out the grocery and flour and feed business of E. W. Sleeper, at the corner of sixth and Laurel streets.

The office of A. P. Riggs, successor to O. H. Hubbard in real estate and collections, is room 12, Sleeper block, next door to Journal office.

AT COHEN BROS. YOU CAN GET ALL-WOOL RED FLANNEL UNDERWEAR FOR LADIES AT 75c. FORMER PRICE $1.00.

Sunday morning the subject at the Methodist church will be "The spirit that leads to glory." In the evening "The Power of Faith."

About a foot of snow has fallen since Wednesday night, and as the roads were as smooth as glass and as hard as flint before it came, the sleighing is fine.

AT COHEN BROS. YOU CAN GET AN ALL-WOOL CASHMERE UNDERWEAR FOR LADIES AT $1.25. FORMER PRICE $1.50.

E. O. Webb has purchased the post-office news stand and business, of Cable & Co., and has moved it into his store on Front street. Mr. Webb now has control of that line of business in this city.

The public schools were re-opened on Monday after the usual holiday vacation. The attendance is good and the scholars showed renewed vigor after their week's rest.

Cal. Wagner's minstrels will occupy the opera house on Monday evening next, Jan. 11th. These minstrels are pronounced by press and public to be the greatest on earth.

Every body knows "Happy Cal. Wagner," and they also know that his troupe of minstrels is the finest in the land. They will hold forth at the opera house next Monday night.

Thirteen pigs once graced the sty adjacent the grist mill. The number is now five, one having died and the other seven having been stolen at different times by some lover of pork.

A party of Brainerd young people were entertained by R. K. Whitley and family, on Saturday evening last, at his residence three and one-half miles northeast of the city. They report having had a very enjoyable time.

The state firemen's tournament will be held at Shakopee in the spring, and at a recent meeting of the department of this city A. F. Leopold and Wm. Spencer were elected to represent our city at the convention.

There is a movement on foot to establish a market place in this city for the sale of all wood, hay, etc., that is brought into the city by the farmers. The scheme is a good one and we would like to see it carried out.

Judge and Mrs. J. B. Douglas started on Tuesday night for Windsor Locks, Conn., their old home, where they will visit for several days. During Mr. Douglas' absence Judge Fleming presides with dignity over the municipal court.

H. O. Shaner and bride arrived in Brainerd on Thursday night of last week from Pennsylvania. The newly married couple went immediately to housekeeping in the house formerly occupied by Mr. Vanderveer on Ninth street.

The new officers of White Cross Lodge K. P. were installed on Tuesday evening by Grand District Deputy, Wm. Percy. After the installation exercises were over the members were invited to a banquet at the City Restaurant which was tendered them by the newly installed officers.

K. S. Paine & Co., is the new style of the city meat market firm. K. S. Paine having formed a partnership with his brother, N. M. Paine, who has for the past four years resided in Illinois. With the new addition to the firm and new apparatus that has recently been added they cannot but do an immense business.

The ladies of the Methodist church will give an Oyster supper at the new church on Thursday evening of next week, Jan. 14th. The evening will be enlivened by a choice musical programme, the proceeds to be applied on the expense of furnishing the new church. Let there be a good attendance.

We have several subscribers on our list who have agreed to bring word to this office to liquidate their indebtedness on the paper. Wind burns very well in yards, but when the thermometer gets down to 25 degrees below zero it gets the real stuff to take the chill off. In other words—will those parties who promised us word on subscription please bring it in NOW.

A SUCCESS IN EVERY PARTICULAR.

New Year's Night Enlivened by a Grand Concert and Ball at the Roller Rink.

The Library Benefit.

It is with much satisfaction that we chronicle the fact of the immense success of the concert, conversation and ball given on New Year's Night by the members of the N. P. R. R. Association of this city. Long before the time appointed for the entertainment to take place the mammoth rink was filled until it seemed there was hardly room for another person, but still they came; the gallery, the seating room and the standing room was all occupied. The first thing that met the gaze of the spectator as he entered the room were the beautiful decorations of evergreens, with hanging lanterns and were twisted into different shapes. Over the entrance of the rink on the inside was an arch made entirely of evergreens, and on which was a motto "Welcome All," the "all" being in the shape of a shoemaker's awl. Over the stage was a banner on which were inscribed the words "Happy New Year," underneath which was a large open book and on the right hand page the words "N. P. R. R. Association," the left hand page containing the words "Knowledge is Power." Over the band stand was a large half circle bearing the name of the association and which was finely decorated and trimmed with evergreens; underneath the stand was spread the national colors. The hall was lighted with the usual lamps with the addition of four headlamps, while the light for the stage was given out by four beautiful hanging lamps, which were furnished by Walter Davis for the occasion.

When everything was in readiness for the literary exercises, Capt. Spalding arose from his seat on the stage as chairman, and greeted the audience with a very neat and appropriate speech in behalf of the association, thanking the audience for their attendance and liberal patronage which had been of material aid in getting the association under headway. Mr. Spalding filled the chair with much credit to himself and the association, and the committee are to be congratulated upon having made so excellent a selection. After concluding his remarks Mr. Spalding announced that the exercises would begin with an overture by the City Band entitled "Poet and Peasant," which was delightfully rendered. Next was a chorus by the Brainerd Musical Society that was quite heartily encored. Then came a rendition of the famous quartet scene, acted by scene 3, Julius Cæsar, between Brutus and Cassius, by Al. and George Leopold, Al. impersonating Brutus while George did Cassius. This was one of the richest treats of the evening, for no where else the stage and rarely among professionals can be found a better interpretation of these characters than was here displayed by the brothers. Their make up was faultless, and must have required no little trouble and expense. They did not rant and rave, as is commonly done by amateurs, but rendered their parts with expression and in a manner that would have done credit to professionals. Not a few in the audience were surprised find such dramatic talent in our midst, and they were encored with a gusto which indicated that their efforts were appreciated. Next came a recitation by Chas. Johnson, whose "Extraordinary Pleading" brought down the house, after which the audience was favored by a song, "The Village Blacksmith," by John W. Wood. The gle club, composed of Messrs. Camp, Congdon, Hitchcock and Alderman, sang "Take me back to old Virginia" in such a credible manner that at its conclusion they were recalled and again favored the audience; the club never fail to arouse the enthusiasm of their hearers. The next on the programme was the guitar solo by Messrs. Shaw and Daggett, and the gentlemen displayed no little skill in the performance of the strings of this favorite instrument; they were recalled a second time. The piano solo by Mrs. H. J. Small came next and was executed in a manner that indicated the fine musical culture of this lady. A character song by Miss Katie Meekins was sung in such a manner as to completely captivate her hearers, and she was recalled and sang "Pretty Pond Lilies," which was also well rendered, although we think the music was rather difficult for one so young. Master W. N. Wood then appeared before the audience in a character song "Papa's Little Boy," which was so well carried out that the audience was convulsed with laughter, and especially was that part of the audience pleased who had experienced the same thing themselves, and Master Wood was called again to the stage. Dr. Hawley was then called upon for a few remarks, and addressed the audience as follows:

MR. PRESIDENT, LADIES AND GENTLEMEN: I have been requested to make a few remarks at this point in the program for the evening. The motto of the association is "Knowledge is Power," knowledge is indeed power—power for good or evil, according to the will of the person using it.

It is with much pleasure that I offer my hearty congratulations to the officers and men of the N. P. R. R. resident in Brainerd, and to the success in founding an N. P. R. R. Association Library for their own and their successors' use in connection with their already established reading rooms.

A library, amply supplied and wisely arranged will be a valuable addition to our educational machinery, furnish mental pabulum to both officers and men, and be a stimulus to inquiry and research.

In the wisdom of ages—in the treasures of mechanical science, there is a vast educational power. The thought of what others have done in the investigation, which have conducted, and the results they have achieved affords inspiration to those who are to follow.

For the purposes of reference, a well assorted library is of the highest utility, while supplying information, and thus engendering thought and stimulating action, it is invaluable. It should be a library representing all ages, all countries, all branches and accessible in its richest treasures to all its members. The two institutions or branches of the association, the reading room and the library are the agents for the impartation of knowledge and depositaries of learning, and are especially what our young men need at the present time.

In the last thirty years the productions of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news had grown old when it was published. The paper then was the historian of the past, rather than a spectator and actor in the present. In those times news ran along the street from mouth to mouth, the gossiping of the printing press have undergone a wonderful development—a transformation indeed, in the newspaper, the magazine, the book, and the tract. In thirty years ago the news

